Life Styles 370

Eight thousand three hundred eighty seven students arrived on the James Madison University campus in the warmth of late August. New friendships began, old friendships rekindled, and individuals arranged rooms and apartments to their tastes. Students struggled through registration, and classes soon began.

A few weeks of putting off classwork to party with friends and play in the sun, let the work load multiply. It seemed impossible to catch up as the assignments piled higher. Sometimes we thought the work would never end, the rain would never stop, the construction would never finish, and the dining hall lines would go on forever.

Things did eventually shift back into perspective. While completing the work, there was still time to spend with friends. Most of us soon nestled into the Shenandoah Valley, on and around campus, and called it home.

Unusually warm fall months provided many opportunities for outdoor activities. Cooler temperatures, at the end of October, did finally spark the beautiful fall foliage that the Valley is noted for. The campus was soon covered with fallen leaves of every shade of gold, red, and brown.

Homecoming October 27

A parade full of floats, bands, clowns, and Ms. Madison finalists; yellow corsages with purple ribbons; a football victory; halftime entertainment by the James Madison University Marching Royal Dukes; the crowning of Kathy Johannes as Ms. Madison; partying with friends on the hill — all under a clear blue sky. This was Homecoming "Octoberfest '79."

October 10th surprised everyone. To awake Wednesday morning and find it snowing, caused quite a shock. A little more than ten inches fell before midday. The freak snow occurred earlier than any other recorded in the Valley, and broke the record for the most accumulation. But alas, classes continued as scheduled, and the snow soon melted.

With winter came many more inches. Students bundled up and trudged through the snow to classes, while Building and Grounds cleared the way. The bundling and trudging wasn't so unbearable when supplemented by snowball fights, and sledding down RMH hill on sleds and dining hall trays.

Snow doesn't last forever. Spring does finally appear, and once again, students enjoy the warm air and sunshine. The green grass becomes a favorite place to study (if there is such a place), and the student body is laid out to tan.

Spring Fever April 14

Almost-Anything-Goes would have been as appropriate a title for Spring Fever weekend as it was for the intra-dorm game competitions that took place during it. The University Program Board sponsored event, on the east side of Godwin Hall, included a live band, carnival booths, games, snow cones, and coolers. Students wearing shorts, t-shirts, and consolation prizes, poured onto the field to enjoy a sunny Saturday of fun.

Practical Experience

When I was a little girl, I learned to write and read, History, Geography, and Home Economy, But if anyone would ask me, "What do you want to be?" I'd say I want to be an engineer.

I wake up every morning, I work from eight to four, I've come to the conclusion engineering is a bore. I want to work with people, I'd enjoy it so much more, Why did I want to be an engineer? — Peggy Seeger, "I want to be an Engineer"

In today's world of specialized careers, it is quite possible to spend four years of college preparing for a job only to find you dislike it. James Madison University offers several career experiences for credit that let students test a job out, as well as providing on the job training that can't be had in a classroom. Under the name of internships, field placements, and practicums, these experiences can be arranged in almost any area of study.

There is no university wide policy on career experiences for credit, consequently, each department's program is in some way distinct from the others. Policies differ in their structure — some have very rigid guidelines for internship objectives and procedures, while others are extremely flexible. As a rule, the older a program is, the more structured it is.

Student teaching is the oldest internship at James Madison University, as the school was once primarily a teacher's college. The State of Virginia requires that education majors and minors spend at least eight weeks in student teaching, which makes it the largest internship at JMU. Dr. Henry Bowers, co-ordinator of student teaching, estimates that about 400 students participate in the program each year.

According to the student teaching guidelines, the experience enables a student to apply the knowledge and skills he has learned in his classes. Julie Williams, student teacher at Waterman Elementary School, explains it differently. "Student teaching allows you to sort the information you've learned. The actual situation is different from the books. You have to decide which lessons really apply and which ones don't." Mark Guerin, student teacher at Broadway High School, adds an important function of the program: "Books can't teach the self-satisfaction you get from teaching."

Julie Williams derives satisfaction

from her teaching as well, but also adds that there is "a lot of paperwork" involved. "The test of a vocation is the love of drudgery it involves" wrote Logan Smith, describing another important function of internships. Students are given a chance to actually try out a job to see if they would like to make a career out of it.

Dr. Harold McGee, director of field placements in psychology, feels that this chance is especially important for Psychology and Social Work majors. "Both fields offer a great variety of careers. A Student may be suited for a school psychologist position, but not for work in a mental hospital." Cindy Nash reports that her internship at Camelot Nursing Home has improved her social work skills, but she also learned that she'd rather work in youth counseling. Dr. McGee emphasizes this learning aspect of internships by equating them with the laboratory and field experiences of the science departments.

The Psychology, Social Work, and Education internships are all very structured programs; the student must submit a formal application for an internship. If a position is available, he is assigned a faculty advisor for the duration of his internship, and a contract is drawn up between the employer, the school, and the student. Evaluations are due at the end of the internship, often in the form of a paper by the student. Contracts, supervisors, and evaluations are common to all departments, but the formal application is not. Dr. Ross Johnson, director of Business practicums, explains that the business student is responsible for arranging the internship with the employer before the department. Internships are arranged by either method in the Political Science and Communication Arts departments.

Since the student receives credit for an internship, payment is forbidden in most cases. The Political Science and Communication Arts departments do not restrict payment of their interns, but it is not a common occurrence. The emphasis is on the educational value of the program.

"Internships provide students with an opportunity to, trite as it may sound, put theory into practice," according to Mr. James Kinnaird, director of internships in Political Science, Public Administration, and Law. Leslie Shipley, who spend three and a half weeks with the Institute for Law and Research in Washington, D.C., agrees. "Everything I'd learned in classes was important and applicable."

Experience is a premium in the field of communications. The first year on a job is often considered a 5th year of college, so an internship with a professional organization is quite valuable on a resume. Mr. Alan Neckowitz, assistant professor of Communication Arts, emphasizes that the internships are professional experiences. "A practicum working for the BREEZE is a very valuable experience, but it's simply not the same as an internship with the DAILY NEWS RECORD." Dr. Colin Turner, associate professor of Communication Arts, is quick to praise the area media that offer internships: "They offer hands on experience, not just looking over someone's shoulder." Nancy Manners, intern with WPVT-TV, adds another important point: "You learn the politics of a business — how to get along with your superiors and co-workers.

Both the Political Science and Communication Arts internship programs experience snowballing — that is, a student arranges his own internship, and following his term, the employer asks for other students. In this manner, the program keeps growing.

As a whole, JMU's internship program is expanding; new internships are being introduced and more students are taking advantage of them. According to Dr. William Jackameit, director of Institutional Research, over 600 students served some sort of internship in the past year, and about 25% of all students will do so at one time or another.

I'd like to work with people, to help with things they need,
Social work perhaps, or child
psychology,
I'd like to try the job
out first, to see if it suits me,
I need to serve an internship.

People More Knowledgeable

JMU, along with the rest of the world, is keeping close watch on that ever-growing, ever-changing institution called civilization. The questioning, probing atmosphere of the university may, in fact, increase the wonder about what society was, and will be. The search for answers to somewhat unanswerable questions takes many shapes on our campus, most notably our attempt to gain information from people more knowledgeable. Every year different groups sponsor lecturers who make either solo appearances or who speak in conjunction with an organized group of speakers.

The Fall Arts and Sciences Symposium is perhaps the most comprehensive lecture program at JMU. The four day series is arranged through the College of Letters and Sciences and is chaired by Dr. Philip Riley. The lecture series gives an opportunity for the faculty, the students, and the community to come together and discuss a broad subject area which cuts across all discipline. A number of noted philosophers, theologians, authors, and scholars are scheduled to present lectures and sit in on panel discussions.

This year's symposium (the Sixth Annual) titled "Science, Faith and Progress" encompassed a selected group of speakers, lecturing on nature and civilization. The symposium was presented as an unfolding chronology of civilization, and opened with a lecture by science writer John Pfeiffer entitled, "The Origins of Culture." The series progressed with lectures and panel discussions addressing such topics as politics, scientific research, progress of society, and science and antiscience.

The symposium concluded with the keynote speaker, Isaac Asimov, who lectured on "The Future of Civilization." Asimov was the most popular and successful speaker of the symposium, lecturing to a large crowd in Godwin Hall. Asimov's popularity is unquestioned at JMU, as this was his third visit.

A second organized lecture series, also sponsored by the College of Letters and Sciences, is the Visiting Scholars program. The extensive series spans both semesters. Each year scholars from widely varying fields of interest speak on a great diversity of topics. This year's visiting scholars included such notables as C. Brooks Peters, speaking on "Germany Forty Years Ago and the Holocaust" and Jean Mary Morman Unsworth, lecturing on "The Arts and Wholeness," among many others.

A number of independent speakers also visited JMU, sponsored by several different campus organizations. The University Program Board sponsored Mr. Fred Storasko, who has presented his discussion of "How To Say No To a Rapist and Survive" at Madison several times. The UPB also presented noted novelist, poet, and lecturer, James Dickey. Charles Colson, noted for his part in the Watergate conspiracy and authorship of Born Again was also featured at JMU. He was sponsored by a variety of campus organizations.

Ladies & Gentlemen . . . Virginia's Finest

The James Madison University Marching Royal Dukes is a 220 member corps style marching band that incorporates a thirty member percussion section, a ten member rifle line, a thirty member flag corps, two feature twirlers, and two drum majors. The band has, in reality, come to be regarded as "Virginia's finest," and also sports a fine reputation on a national level as one of the most exciting college marching bands.

The Marching Dukes have established their reputation not only by playing at all home games, but also by traveling with the Dukes and performing at a number of away games. The reception of the band at William and Mary, The University of Virginia and East Tennessee State University was overwhelming, as evidenced by several standing ovations. The most impressive reaction to the group was the first standing ovation ever for a band at UVA. The Marching Dukes further enhanced their fame by performing at two pro-football games, and were so well received at the Redskin's game that they were invited to return. Another of the Marching Duke's outstanding accomplishments was hosting the Second Annual Marching Bands of America Mid-East Regional Competition.

The band's continuous professionalism and standard of excellence is a key point to their reputation at JMU and elsewhere. The community of Harrisonburg, the students and faculty take great pride in the Marching Band, and the half-time show is always a highlight of every home game.

In 1977, Mr. Michael David was named Director of the Marching Band and has since brought the band to its present lofty reputation as one of the nation's most entertaining college marching bands.

Homecoming: Mapes and Revue

Fall is always highlighted by Homecoming. Few can escape getting caught up in the exciting flurry of events.

For the fourth consecutive year, James Mapes amazed an overflowing Wilson Hall with the powers of the mind. Willing students captivated the remainder of the audience with their imaginary rocket ship trip, space dust highs, hot seats, hot lips, and age regression. One participant was especially entertaining with his insistent Peter Rabbit identity and his detailed childhood memories.

The 7th annual Octoberfest weekend began with an inspiring Homecoming Revue October 24th. Each year the student talent has improved overwhelmingly. The 4th annual revue proudly continued this professional polish.

Masters of Ceremonies, Edmunds and Curley, kept the audience in stitches with their unusual sound effect comedy style. Only two of the twelve student performances were non-musicals. Of these two, David Carter's humorous and skillful juggling act, earned him the Best Talent Award for the third year in a row.

The remaining ten performances included a variety of musical styles, ranging from rock to bluegrass to folk. A six member gospel-bluegrass group called the Cornerstone Band, received the Originality Award. The Underground Blues Band won the audience and the Popularity Award with their sharp imitation of Dan Ackroyd and John Belushi's "Blues Brothers." Freshman guitarist-vocalist Lynn Perkins was also well received for her beautiful vision of "Jesse."

Sunny Saturday

The sky couldn't have been bluer Saturday morning. People lined along the curbs of campus and Main Street waiting for the Homecoming parade.

Ms. Madison finalists, high school marching bands, clowns of all sizes, and floats simplistic as Gifford Hall's shopping cart and complex as Sigma Pi's Wilson Hall, streamed past the smiling spectators. As usual, the Bluestone residents enthusiastically cheered the parade on. Judges selected the winning float and band. Sigma Pi's efforts earned them the prize for the best float.

This Saturday is a favorite among alumnae for a return visit. Fraternities and sororities welcomed them with Cocktail parties. The Alumni Association offered a barbecue beside the lake.

Everyone prepared for the football game. Spectators packed Madison Stadium and the ever popular hill to watch the Dukes take a marginal lead over the Randolph-Macon College Yellow Jackets. Half time provided its usual flair. Kathy Johannes, representing the Distributive Education Club, was named Ms. Madison, and parade awards were announced. The Dingle-dine-Garber dorm display won for the fourth consecutive year. The Marching Royal Dukes received a standing ovation for their usual spectacular performance. The football team came back on the field to continue trouncing the Yellow Jackets for a welcomed 54-0 victory.

The festivities ended Saturday night with a rowdy Kenny Loggins Concert in Godwin Hall.

Seldom does any JMU event evoke as much enthusiasm as the basketball game against arch-rival Virginia Commonwealth University did this season. Before the game began, the fans were brought to their feet by the introduction of JMU's new mascot, Duke III. Sigma Phi Epsilon introduced the seven-month-old English bulldog, which they purchased as a service project for the university. JMU had been without a mascot since Duke II died in August 1978.

Duke III quickly took on the duties assigned to him. He barked at the band, pranced around the floor and received ample attention.

The university owns the dog, and two faculty members, Drs. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson take care of him between home games.

The capacity crowd never rested and the noise level vibrated every corner of Sinclair Gym, as the fearful memory of last second, one point defeats filled the air.

For two years, the two teams played into overtime. And for two years, the game ended in despair for the Dukes.

This year was different. JMU had a two-point lead with 14 seconds left, but the Rams had possession of the ball. With six seconds remaining, VCU's Danny Kottak sent the ball that could have caused a second overtime. But this time the ball flew off the rim and into the hands of skying Steve Steilper. He tucked it safely under his arms for the final seconds. The crowd exploded with ecstasy.

The exciting 53-51 win will not be quickly forgotten. We finally beat VCU.

VCU, You've Been DUKED!

Lines are phenomenal the first day concert tickets are on sale. "We need to see your I.D." says the committee member, as you slap down your money for your two allotted student priced tickets. Plans are then made to gather friends together before the concert.

A line begins to form outside of Godwin Hall's doors two hours before the concert begins. When 8 p.m. draws near, overanxious ticket holders pound on the doors. Everyone is fired up.

People jam to the front to get seats left vacant by the UPB, and then fill every other available inch on the floor.

When the concert finally begins, people clap, yell, whistle, stomp and howl. No matter what the performers play or how they play it, the audience appears to enjoy the show.

The enthusiasm burns on the end when the audience calls for an encore or two. No one calms down until the house lights come on.

The Farm

Fifty years ago, the State Teacher's College, under former President Samuel Duke, purchased the College Camp as a place where students could go on weekend retreats.

The College Camp is now called the James Madison University Farm, and it is still a popular retreat for student and faculty picnics and parties.

The 37 acre farm, on the Shenandoah River, is located 12 miles outside of Harrisonburg in Port Republic. The farm, which included the six-bedroom house, cost $4,750 in 1929. It has a present day value of $150,000.

Over the years, improvements have been made. A barbecue pit, a pavillion, picnic tables, and bathrooms have been added.

The farm is a great place for an all day party for dorms or organizations. From early evening to late night, people devour hamburgers and hot dogs, play games, talk, dance, and drain kegs.

The added dimension of being outdoors lessens social inhibitions and encourages interaction. Few people can resist laughing with friends while sitting around a campfire, dancing under the pavillion, or hanging from the rafters.

This may not be what Duke had in mind when the farm was purchased, but farm parties add many good memories to a student's years at JMU.

The Alumni Lament

College was a world of surreal devise,
Where dreams, And young loves,
And good times energized.

There were no doubts among us,
We would all go far,
Have fur lined bathtubs,
And Ferarri cars.

And rule the world,
With utopic manifestos purported,
We had time for grand talk . . .
We were being supported,
And by cute little coeds,
so sweetly consorted.

With no office to slave us,
We did as we pleased,
Slept in until noon,
With our conscious at ease,
Spending hours together,
Just shooting the breeze.

Ah, but time marches on,
And old empires crumble
It's life's surest way
To keep us all humble.

Yet I can't help but thinking,
What a lementable thing!
To be punching a time clock,
The Ex-Campus King.

Now I am past graduation,
And there's no more time for delay
What with confounding inflation,
And taxes to pay.

So I slave at my desk,
With my quotas to meet,
And my mortgage loans, Backache moans,
And four hours sleep.

All these woes piled upon me,
It seems so easy to say,
That compared to this hash,
Campus life was soufflé!

So here's a word from a veteran,
To all you now campus sheik,
Make it count while you have it,
'Cause it's not yours to keep.

The world's mandates are plain,
And the truth is explicit,
There is no going back,
But God knows I miss it!

A black and white photograph of a cluttered desk. In the foreground, a rotary telephone is on the left, and a calendar is on the right. A sign that says "LADIES" is hanging in the background. On the desk are several bottles, including Jim Beam and Canadian Club. There are also books, a pair of glasses, and various papers scattered around. The scene suggests a busy, perhaps chaotic, workspace.

Three books, an umbrella, two notebooks, a half-eaten sandwich, a racquetball racquet, twenty-four cents, a pack of gum, an ID, a shopping list, and assorted pens and pencils.

This could be a description of a desk top or a collection of junk under someone's bed, but if you take a look in the pack-packs around campus, the description turns into a sample of what you might find.

Due to the number of necessities a college student is forced to carry with him at all times on campus, a back-pack or book bag is almost a requirement for survival at JMU. Unless a student has more than two arms or exceedingly large pockets he does not have any way to lug everything over the hills and valleys on campus — thus the back-pack.

What seems like one small step for man is actually one giant leap for James Madison University. The crumbling mass of boards that the grounds crew called stairs and the lake complex residents called a pain in the foot, finally has been replaced. While the lake dwellers and "Godwinians" still complain about the distance, the journey is not as treacherous due to the new construction. The students no longer face an obstacle course of missing steps and broken handrails.

Another feature of the new stairs which simplifies the trek is that they are all uniform in length. Previous climbers needed to store up all of their concentration for the hike to be sure that each foot landed in the right place on the uneven steps. Students now no longer have to walk with their eyes on their feet and a look of fear on their faces.

The new stairs have also drawn acclaim for their aesthetic beauty. The lamented wood and eye-catching structure have changed a campus eye-sore into an attractive sight. The group of benches in the observation area, midway up the hill, also has added to the beauty of the construction. The trek is so long however, that beauty may not be the real reason for the benches. For those students who are not potential mountain climbers or future Olympic athletes, the observation area doubles as a rest stop.

Suddenly big red stars appear on every calendar within reach, an eight by ten inch present list appears out of no where, "subtle" hints are dropped at every appropriate or inappropriate occasion, and people begin to realize that your birthday is approaching. The only thing better than being at home for your birthday is being at school when the big day rolls around. For once during the whole year you find yourself the center of attention. After three years you finally get a personal in the Breeze, people are somewhat nice to you, and you even get two letters in your typically empty mailbox on the same day. Usually there is a big celebration held in your honor, sometimes there is a cake and ice cream, and always there is a party.

There are some drawbacks however to having a birthday at school. You have to make a grandiose effort to divide a Snackin' cake into seventeen pieces. You also have dirty tricks pulled on you. Another disadvantage to school birthdays occurs during the party stage — if you were at home your mother would never force you to chug twenty-one beers in a row and do a shot of whiskey to grow on (or throw up on, whichever the case may be).

Of course the best part about celebrating a birthday at school is finally having an "undebatable" excuse for cutting classes.

Just when you breathe a sigh of relief because your paper is finally written, you realize that you have to face the task of typing it — or better yet, finding some “dear, sweet, kind” friend to type it for you.

The brave “do-it-yourselfers” can be classified into two categories, those who type like Susie Secretary and those who type like Henry Hunt-and-Peck.

It is inevitable that at least once in your college career, you are forced to turn in a typed paper. If you are one of the lucky ones who can type like a whiz, the paper is no problem. If, on the other hand, you couldn't pass a third grade finger coordination test even if you cheated, you might be in for some trouble.

The non-typist realizes that he is in for a long, hard night when he doesn't begin to write his paper until 12:00 midnight. Four cups of coffee and two No-Dozes later, he finishes his paper and the torture begins. After hours of typing he suddenly realizes that it is 10:45 and the paper is due at 12:00. It doesn't take a mathematician to calculate that at the rate of twelve words per minute, the remaining three pages will never get done on time. He makes a Herculean effort to speed up, finishes the paper, and rushes to class. He bursts into the room, paper (hot off the press) clutched triumphantly in hand and to his horror remembers that the last page is still at home in the typewriter.

FLASH: James Madison University has joined the space age with its invention of negative time. The students of the small southeastern college have discovered that it is possible to make a normal five minute walk in minus two and one half hours. A person can leave Burruss Hall at 10:55 a.m. (just enough time to get to an 11:00 class), and arrive in Harrison Hall at 8:20 a.m. The University also has discovered time lapse. The same student can leave Harrison Hall at 8:20 (obviously too early for his 11:00 class) and go to D-hall, only to find out that he has missed not only his 11:00, but also his 2:00 class.

How is this possible? The phenomenon can be resolved by a glance at the clocks in every building on campus. It is quite obvious that the person who set each of them either cannot tell time or has a Timex that took a licking and just quit ticking.

Just a pinch between cheek and gum, a spit in the bucket, and you're on your way. It used to be that you could only find chewing tobacco on a baseball field or in Mayberry, R.F.D., but now it has turned into a popular past time for a great many college males. It seems that everywhere you turn on campus, you can see males with tin cans in their pockets and protruding lower lips.

Although chewing is becoming more and more popular, it does have some problems. Many girls refuse to kiss a male with a chew in his cheek. Another drawback to chewing is that it tends to make the chewer's face look a little on the deformed side. Despite these and other disadvantages of chewing it looks like the habit is here to stay.

For those who continue the practice we have one hint: Don't spit in the wind.

Although the building has changed, the crowd remains the same. Grafton-Stovall, the newly-built, attractive movie theatre has replaced Wilson Hall as the sight of campus flicks. The atmosphere has changed from an open, gymnasium-like theatre to a warm, comfortable theatre. The audience, however has not made the switch in style to accompany the building. When the good guy wins, applause still rings through the building. One-liners from the audience are still sprinkled throughout the showings, catcalls, and shouts of "volume" and "focus" are also abundant.

The greatest advantage of the new theatre is that you can enjoy all of the benefits of a real-life movie theatre without having to pay the price. Who says you can't get a good deal any more — Yes, Virginia, there is a one dollar movie ticket.

The University Program Board, as a part of its recreation program sponsors a series of mini-courses during the year in the Experimental University. The courses run for eight weeks and give students an opportunity to take classes not offered in the regular curriculum. The program includes classes such as Basic Bartending, Auto Repair, beginning Guitar, Disco Dance, and Career Decision Making. The mini-courses offer a wide variety of activities and the cost to the student is minimal.

One of the most popular courses is the Basic Bartending class. Participants gain a knowledge of the basic theory of mixing drinks and the correct usage of glassware. Another favorite is the Auto Repair Information class. It is a basic course for students with a limited knowledge of cars. As a whole, the program offers students an opportunity to learn something and to have a good time.

Waiting in line seems to be the order of things these days, and getting gas is no exception. Although the gas shortage has eased somewhat, it still takes an average of twenty minutes to find a station that is open and to wait in line to fill up. College students have an especially difficult time getting gas because to them time is almost no object — money is. Most students would suffer a wait in line up to thirty minutes to gain the advantage of gas priced four cents per gallon lower than at other stations.

Not many stations in Harrisonburg are still under the ninety cent mark, but those which are have an overwhelming amount of JMU business. If a student stumbles across a relatively low-priced station, he excitedly and jealously guards the secret for as long as possible to avoid a crowd and more lines. If the news leaks out, however, it's like a holiday on campus. Professors cancel class, people are up and moving (and even looking alive) at 7:00 am., and there is a mad scramble for J and X lots. Soon the lines become too long at the new-found well, and the search begins again for the almighty "cheaper per gallon" gas.

A BRIDGE FROM PAST TO PRESENT

Other than that fleeting moment that is the present, our lives are composed totally of memories. There is no better way to capture and relive memories than through a book like this 1980 issue of the Bluestone. I'm sure that each James Madison University student will find that the Bluestone serves as a cherished memento to be used in recalling all the joys, achievements, triumphs—and even disappointments—that made 1979-80 a most memorable year.

For those students who graduated in 1980 you fill a very special role in the history of James Madison University. The great majority of you in the Class of 1980 entered our University in 1976 when it was known as Madison College. You are the last graduating class to have attended Madison College. Yours is a unique role in that your years at our institution mark a bridge between the past of Madison College and the present and future of James Madison University.

I hope that each of you look back on 1979-80 with happy memories of another exciting chapter in your life. I wish you the best in the future.

Cordially,
Ronald E. Carrier, President
James Madison University

BATTING AGAINST THE PROS

Playing a professional team in a collegiate schedule is not a common occurrence; however, the 1979 Duke baseball team had this opportunity when they faced the Kansas City Royals. Even though they lost both contests, the fact that this was the first time a JMU baseball team had ever played the professional ranks made it all worthwhile.

The Dukes were tested early in the season against two of the nation's number one baseball teams — Miami and Florida International. The Dukes lost to Miami, but split against Florida International.

The team returned from Florida on a five game winning streak and continued the streak for ten more games before losing to interstate rival UVA. Such strings of victories enabled the Dukes to compile an impressive 31-13 record.

JMU's last opponent of the regular season was the fifth ranked Clemson Tigers. After losing the opener, the Dukes made a tremendous comeback to win the second game and the third game tiebreaker.

Three seniors played instrumental roles in leading the Dukes to their fourth straight 30-win season. Second baseman Rob Knowick batted .323, Mike Estes had a 4-3 pitching record while batting .336, and Ellis Berkowitz completed another fine year on the mound with a 4-2 mark.

Sophomore standout Lorenzo "Peanut" Bundy was the recipient of the offensive MVP award leading the team in hits, batting percentage, homeruns, and RBI's. Defensive MVP was awarded to Mark Dacko who had an outstanding record of 6-1 from the pitcher's position and the team-leading ERA of 2.94.

The Dukes were invited to the Eastern Coast Athletic Conference (E.C.A.C.) playoffs and won two games before being eliminated from the double elimination tournament. Most teams would be pleased to be invited to the E.C.A.C. tournament four out of the last five years, but according to Coach Brad Babcock, "We still have some unfinished business to take care of." — that being the N.C.A.A. tournament.

Archers Improve National Ranking

In what Coach Margaret Horn called a "rebuilding year," the JMU archery team rebuilt in a hurry.

Once again the team completely dominated in-state foes and easily won men's, women's, and mixed team competition at the Virginia Collegiate Tournament. In the Eastern Regional Tournament, the women placed second, the men third, and the mixed team second. The team played in numerous tournaments across the East Coast, including the Philadelphia Invitational Tournament, which featured over 100 of the country's top archers. The last and most important tournament of the year was the National Archery Association Collegiate (N.A.A.C.) tournament which was held on the campus of Texas A & M. The women placed sixth in the event, while the men came in fourteenth. As a mixed team they placed fifth in the contest.

Rick Kiser finished first in the state, fourth in both the Eastern Regionals and the U.S. Indoor Tournament, and eighth in the N.A.A.C. tournament. The team also received support from sophomore Mark Chamberlain and three freshmen — Mark Hartman, Larry Jenkins and Dan Olinski.

Freshman Janet McCullough dominated women's competition, finishing in the top three of every tournament she entered.

In the N.A.A.C. she came in second and narrowly missed a bid to represent the U.S. in the Pan-Am games. Diane Jeffrey placed second behind Janet in the state, placed eleventh in the regionals, and sixteenth in the N.A.A.C.

The Dukes will be faced with another tough schedule next year, but with the addition of some of the top men and women archers in the country, the team should be among the nation's best.

Setting the Pace

Any talk concerning the 1979 men's cross country team would have to center around junior sensations Mike Benshoff and Richard Ferguson. These two men were among the state's finest performers. Benshoff finished fourth in the Virginia State Championships, while Ferguson placed tenth. Their finest performances came at the Penn State Invitational where Benshoff placed seventh and Ferguson twentieth, in competition against 200 of the East Coast's finest runners. Benshoff competed in the Division I regional tournament, but fell early in the race and was unable to make up lost ground, thus eliminating his chances to qualify for Nationals.

Juniors Jeryl Turner and Ed Hume added depth to the Duke squad which finished second in both the Essex College Invitational and Indiana Univ. (Pa.) Invitational. The team's most rewarding dual meet victory came over the University of Richmond. The narrow victory, 25-31, marked the first time in JMU cross-country history that the Dukes had won this confrontation.

The women's team, under the leadership of Coach Lynn Smith, underwent a rigorous training program that resulted in constant improvement throughout the season. The squad's hard work payed off toward the end of the season as the Duchesses made several impressive showings. They finished third in the VAAW Division II State Championships, and second in the AIAW Division II Region II Championships. The second place finish qualified the team to compete in the Division II National Tournament.

LeAnn Buntrock, Beth Nagy, and Tracy Herndon were named to both the All-State and All-Region teams. All three women received these honors by finishing in the top fifteen in both the state and regional meets. Susan Broaddus led the remaining Duchesses who competed in the national meet. The other representatives included Kathy O'Dwyer, Lyn Rasor, and Mary Gibbons.

Just Short of the Goal

During their effort to overcome inexperience, the Duchesses lacrosse team made considerable strides toward achieving a cohesive team. Although their efforts fell just short of producing a winning season, the outlook was brightened by the fact that newcomer Traci Davis was selected to the U.S. All-American Team and other Duchesses were chosen for the All-State Team.

According to Jill Heller, leading scorer with 49 points, the team reached its emotional peak at the Nationals in which they placed eighth. Seeking to avenge a 16-4 clobbering dealt to them earlier in the year by Maryland, the Duchesses fought the Terrapins to a 4-4 deadlock with only minutes left in the game before falling 4-8 in the end.

The cohesiveness built by this season will be tested next season with the loss of captain Erin Marovelli.

Driving Hard

Placing in the top ten of every tournament they played in, the spring golf team made the best showing of any team in the school's history.

In the first tournament of the year, the Coastal Carolina Classic, senior Mike Moyers was the individual winner. JMU placed fourth out of 22 teams. The team finished third in the Fripp Island Invitational, and second in both the Governor's Classic and Elon Invitational. Freshman Mark Carnevale was the individual medalist at the Governor's Classic at Clarksville, Tennessee.

In the Virginia State Golf Championships the team placed third in a tournament they felt they had the talent to win. They rebounded the next weekend at the William and Mary Classic against competition identical to that which they faced at state, and took first place by 25 strokes. Mike Moyers and Mike McCarthy placed first and third respectively in the tournament. Mike Moyers was voted the spring's most valuable golfer. He has since joined the "mini" tour in Florida, making him the first golfer in JMU history to join the pro ranks. Moyers and Mike McCarthy each recorded 73 averages during their senior years. Moyers was named to the All-American team and McCarthy received Honorable Mention.

After losing three seniors, the fall season was thought to be more or less a rebuilding year for the young Duke squad. By signing some blue chip freshmen, the Dukes developed rapidly and completed a successful full season. The team placed second in three tournaments — the Canaan Valley Invitational, the JMU Invitational, and the William and Mary Fall Invitational. In the VMI-Washington and Lee Tournament the team placed third, a mere four strokes off the winning pace. Freshman Jimmy King, sophomore Mark Carnevale, junior Barry Wirt, and senior Jeff Bostic placed consistently in most tournaments.

Coach Balog commented that eight out of his ten golfers are also excellent students. He maintained that this ability to excel academically is especially important as "the golf team travels more than any team at JMU, therefore the men must miss a large amount of classes. We strongly emphasize the student athlete in the golf department."

Playing Up to Par

Playing her best golf of the year, senior Susan Lamotte captured the top position in the first flight of the State tournament. She led the Duchesses to a third place finish. Such fine individual performances as this led the woman duffers through a season which primarily featured tournament competition. Junior Brenda Barker also played admirably, capturing the honor of top individual finisher in the Mary Baldwin Tournament at Appalachian State. She and Lamotte matched averages at 84 at the season's end in a team leading effort.

Double Fault by State Rivals

The tennis schedule for the JMU's team is divided into the spring season consisting entirely of dual matches and the fall season consisting of tournaments.

The spring team finished with an 11-10 record. The Dukes began the season traveling south to play against six schools. They returned with a 4-2 record with victories over such powerful teams as Florida Southern and the University of Tampa.

Mark Snead compiled a team-leading 18-2 dual meet record, and teamed with senior Steve Gill at number one doubles for a 10-7 record. Gill received the MVP award for his consistent play throughout the season. John Witt and Dave Rigotti played impressively at number three doubles ending up with an 11-6 clip.

In the fall, the team competed in five tournaments. The Dukes won their own tournament—the JMU Invitational—by defeating the University of Richmond, Washington and Lee, and George Mason. The victory was especially rewarding because it marked the first time in the school's history that the Dukes have defeated either the University of Richmond or Washington and Lee.

At the Division I tournament, sophomore Mark Snead and freshman Mark Michel combined at number one doubles to defeat the tournament favorites, VMI. In the eight-team Towson State University Tournament, the Dukes placed second. Senior captain Dave Rigotti and John Witt won the number two doubles title. Rigotti, who Coach Jack Arbogast calls "one of the finest competitors in tennis," also played magnificently at number four singles. He advanced to the tournament finals before being defeated.

Jump to the Big League

The 1979 women's spring tennis team began this season by travelling south to play such teams as Georgia Southern, Central Florida, and Stetson University. Considering that the team had practiced indoors only eight times prior to their trip, they played well against schools who had been practicing year-round. Lack of consistency explained the rest of the season as the team finished with a 5-8 dual match record.

For the first time in the school's history, the girls competed in the Large College Division of the VAIW tournament. They finished a disappointing fifth place, but felt that the transition from the small to large college division was a major accomplishment in itself. Lost from the spring team were seniors Pat Higgins and Marsha Williams, the number four and five seeds respectively.

Two freshmen, Rita Santarpia and Ann Perkins, joined the team in the fall and matured rapidly to propel the team to a 5-4 dual match record. Perkins compiled a 9-0 record and combined with teammate Patti Owen to win the consolation finals at the Tennis Life Classic. Heidi Hess, the team's number one seed, played her best tennis of the year at the Eastern Collegiate Tournament in New York, as the Duchesses finished seventeen out of forty-one teams.

Despite its 0-2 dual meet record, the 1979 Duke's track and field team made some major strides by competing against some of the toughest teams on the East Coast. By running against the best competition available, the team was able to improve its individual performances, as shown by the 12 school records which fell during the course of the season.

Once again, the team traveled to Florida in late March to participate in the Florida Relays. The experience proved valuable, as the team made steady progress at the Colonial Relays at William and Mary, the Dogwood Relays at the University of Tennessee, and the prestigious Pennsylvania Relays.

The training and preparation were evident as 13 men qualified for the 1C4A tournament at Franklin Field on the University of Pennsylvania campus. Three of the Duke performers made it to the finals of this national tournament, including Malcolm Taylor in the 200 meters, Sam Onwuli in the long jump, and David Glover in the triple jump. Glover also placed second in the outdoor state tournament and took first indoors in the high jump. Other outstanding efforts came from Doug Wright, who placed second in the Maryland Invitational meet in the 100 meter dash, and top field events performer Clay Holbert, who placed second in the state and fourth in the Dogwood Relays in the javelin.

SECOND IN STATE

Starting the 1979 season with a lack of depth and a rugged schedule, the 1979 Duchesses' track and field team faced a tough challenge. The team made up for these adversities with hard individual work and determination, finishing the season with a 2-0 dual meet record. Nine school records were broken along the way. In addition to their dual schedule, the Duchesses faced some of the toughest teams in the East at the UVA Invitational and the Delaware State College Tournament, in which they placed ninth and eighth respectively.

The highlight of the season was at the VAAW State Championship on the University of Richmond campus, in which JMU finished second behind UVA. The second and third places couldn't be determined until the last event of the day, the mile relay. The Duchesses once again rose to the task and narrowly edged out William and Mary to secure the number two spot.

LeAnn Buntrock led the host of record-setters by breaking the old school marks in the one, two and three mile runs in addition to the 10,000 meter run. Vickie Collins set two records — the 400 meter hurdles and the long jump — both of which she finished second in at the state meet. The three other team members breaking into the record books were Lori Mowen in the 800 meter run, Susan Broadus in the high jump, and Debbie Beamer in the discus.

At the onset of the 1979-80 Duke football season, the team's goals included proving to themselves that they could play each opponent on an even keel, both mentally and physically. Previous opponents such as Washington & Lee, Frostburg State, and Emory and Henry were replaced by Division I schools such as the University of Virginia, William and Mary, and East Tennessee State University, as JMU made the transition from Division III to Division II play. For the first time since the football program began, JMU gave out full and partial scholarships as the Dukes faced five Division I schools and two Division I-AA schools which had already established scholarship programs.

In the season opener, marred by rain, the Dukes fell short in a tough defensive struggle to visiting Austin-Peay University, 10-6. The driving rain put a damper on the Dukes' offense as they sputtered in critical situations. The team faced two more consecutive set-backs, both on the road. A 31-0 shut-out at the hands of East Tenn. St. Univ. and a disappointing 18-8 loss to Towson St. University.

The Dukes broke out of their offensive slump when they returned home to face in-state foe Hampden-Sydney. The defense played inspired ball as JMU recorded its first shut-out of the season, 17-0. Once again the team faced a barrage of road games. They traveled to Dayton where they suffered a 35-15 defeat, before returning to the state only to be thwarted by William and Mary and the University of Virginia, by the respective scores of 33-0 and 69-9.

The team rebounded the next weekend against the Randolph-Macon Yellowjackets, easily winning 54-0. The victory marked a magnificent homecoming performance as the Dukes recorded their second shut-out of the season. Offensive fire-power was provided by freshman Q.B. Tom Bowles and junior tailback Butch Robinson. The defense scored twelve points of it's own as defensive end Tom McGlooin recovered two fumbles for touchdowns.

This victory sparked the Dukes, enabling them to finish the season on an exceptionally high note with upset victories away at Shippensburg State and at home against Morehead State Univ. The Dukes finished this season with their best effort of the year, rolling over nationally ranked MSU, 16-3, as the Dukes dominated every phase of the game.

Head Coach Challace McMillan was especially pleased with the last three victories. As he put it, "We could have just laid down after the U.Va. game with a 1-6 record, but instead we fought tough and hung in there to finish with a respectable year."

Injuries played a role in hampering the Dukes throughout the year. The Offensive line was hit worst, as two possible starters were eliminated for the year. Other players received season ending injuries along with a number of the injury-plagued Dukes who were temporarily forced out of action.

The Dukes were spurred by the running of tailback Butch Robinson. The junior amassed a total of 707 yards on the ground as he became the third leading rusher in JMU history. Sophomore place-kicker Scott Norwood set a school record by kicking three field goals in the MSU game — one of which was a record-shattering 51-yarder — as he finished the season with 35 points. Freshman QB Tom Bowles showed marked improvement throughout the season, finishing with a team-leading 739 yards in total offense. Junior tight-end Mike Battle led the receiving corps with 156 yards on 15 catches, along with Bucky Hurt and Zack Clark, who caught 11 and 9 passes, respectively. Senior co-captain Rick Hetherington and Lee Walter also provided team leadership from their receiver spots.

The Dukes ranked third in the nation in pass defense allowing just under 81 yards per game. Senior co-captain and defense MVP, Conrad Green anchored the defensive backfield with 4 interceptions. The defensive line was led by sophomore Clyde Hoy Jr., John Kubesh, and senior Tom McGloin.

Record: 25-28-3

Balance was the key word in assessing the 1979 Volleyball team. Lacking the height that most of their opposition possessed, the team relied on hustle and outstanding defensive play in completing a successful 25-28-3 season. The highlight of the season came in the team's final regular season game against Virginia Commonwealth University. The Rams had won the first regular season confrontation, 2-1, but JMU fought back in the second meeting winning 2-1. This gave JMU the upper hand going into the VAIWA Division II state tournament. They defeated George Mason 2-1, but then fell to VCU and lost to William and Mary, thus eliminating them from the tournament.

The team made outstanding performances at the East Tennessee State University Invitational Tournament, finishing in sixth place against some of the southeast's toughest competition. They finished second in their own tournament — the JMU Invitational — behind VCU.

Co-captain Sharon Barr was named to the all-tournament team for her outstanding play in the state tournament. Seniors that will be missed by the team included three year starter Kellie Patrick and Pat Beckett.

Unity Keys State Championship

"The squad played together as a team rather than individuals, and as a result the girls were easy to work with," said first year Coach Dee McDonough. This unity was the key in propelling the JMU field hockey team to a very successful season, which was climaxed by winning the VAAIAW state championship.

The team's cohesiveness was especially evident during the state tournament. The Duchesses defeated Old Dominion University, 4-1, and then won two tightly contested battles over William and Mary and the University of Virginia (both in overtime), to secure the VAAIAW title. Both the William and Mary and UVA victories were especially rewarding as JMU had lost to both of these schools during the regular season.

The team came off the state tournament with high hopes of doing well in the AIAW Region II championships, but their play was not at its best. In the first round, the Duchesses faced UVA once again. They lost the rubber game of the series 2-1, marking the third time in as many games that the two squads had battled into overtime. The team was shut out 3-0 by the University of North Carolina in the consolation game of the tournament, spelling the end to the Duchesses season.

In twenty-one games the Duchesses finished with an overall record of 13-5-3 after going 10-3-3 during the regular season. The highlight of the regular season came toward the end when the Duchesses earned a tie with perennial power University of Maryland. This provided the girls with added spark before entering the state tournament.

The defensive standouts on the team included Barb Sabitus and goalie Tara Kelley who recorded seven shut-outs while allowing an average of only 1.238 goals per game. The offensive attack was well balanced in that three starters, in combined goals and assists, scored over ten total points: seniors Theresa Williams (19) and Erin Marovelli (14), and junior Cara Eisenberg (12). Senior captain Sue Deremer provided strong leadership from her defensive position.

The Duchesses, fortunated with a great deal of depth, were able to play a large number of girls enabling them to gain experience for the future.

Second In State Tournament

Fencing is basically an individual sport, and individual achievements are sometimes overshadowed by the team's record. But by the end of their season, the JMU fencers had pulled together in a team effort to take 2nd place at the state tournament.

Fencing meets are divided into 16 individual bouts and are judged by the number of times one touches one's opponent with the foil. If each team wins 8 bouts, the winner is decided by the total number of touches. JMU suffered two of these lost-ties to Johns Hopkins and Randolph Macon, resulting in a season record of 6 and 7, even though the fencers won 60 percent of their individual bouts.

The climax of the season was the VAIW state tournament, in which the team placed second. This was especially gratifying because it was a victory over William & Mary, who took the states last year and defeated JMU earlier in the season.

One team member of note is Kathy Huff. In her first varsity year, she won 70 percent of her bouts, and took 13 of 14 bouts in the states.

Fencing is by nature an individual event, and naming it a team sport can mask individual performance. But the team has its advantages, too. Senior Becca Cowan says, "You're all alone in the bout, of course, but you get a lot of encouragement and confidence from your teammates." Therefore, it was a team effort and not just individual victories that captured 2nd place at the state tournament.

Marginal Defeats Mar Record

Soccer is a game in which a single spectacular play or devastating mistake can result in the margin of victory. For the 1979 Duke soccer team this fact remained clear. In four of the Dukes eight losses, the scoreboard shows a 1-0 score in favor of the opposition — the two most critical coming in the Virginia Inter-collegiate League (VIL) Championship and the ECAC Southern Tournament. In the VIL championship game against William and Mary, the Dukes fought relentlessly on the rain-soaked Madison Stadium field, but were outshot and outplayed by an inspired Indian team. Nevertheless, JMU received a bid to the ECAC Southern Division tournament where they faced

Navy at Annapolis. The Midshipmen had defeated the Dukes earlier in the regular season by that narrow margin of 1-0, and once again the semi-final game of the tournament saw the Dukes fall by the same score. The fourth 1-0 defeat the team suffered was in the season's opener against powerful University of Maryland.

By the end of the season, the Dukes had established themselves as one of the best 8-8-0 teams anywhere, winning all three games in the western division with victories over UVA, VMI, and VPI to finish with a 3-0 VIL record. This gave them the opportunity to face William and Mary, the winner of the VIL Eastern Division, in the championship game. Another highlight of the season was the Dukes 2-1 victory over North Carolina State University. The Wolfpack had been nationally-ranked going into the contest.

The Dukes once again proved themselves to be one of the toughest teams in the state as they showed obvious progression throughout the season. The defense, led by MVP back John Miskel, showed the most steady improvement. He received support from senior back Mark Bost, who recorded five goals and two assists. Senior forward Jim Podlesney had the highest total points, eight, on six goals and two assists. John Mullenex was awarded the MVP award for defense.

Stielper Sets Record

Despite the loss of two of the top JMU players midway through the season, the 1979-80 men's basketball team compensated for the losses with increased hustle and team play, enabling them to finish the season with a 18-8 record.

Forward Linton Townes, averaging in double figures, and reserve guard Rick Williams were released from the team following the Christmas break, forcing the team to respond to the potentially crushing blow.

Having been defeated by East Carolina, UNC-Wilmington, and VCU on the road, the team determined to turn things around on its own floor. In a game that will go down as a classic at Godwin Hall before 5200 fans, the Dukes defeated the Rams of VCU 53-51 in overtime, avenging two previous overtime losses JMU had suffered against VCU at home.

The Dukes went on to defeat both ECU and UNC-Wilmington at home to prove themselves serious contenders. Once again the team continued its mastery over William & Mary winning both at home and on the road, but lost both confrontations to powerful Old Dominion University. The Dukes were runner's up in the ECAC-Southern Division behind ODU with an impressive 7-3 record in the Division, therefore giving them the right to host the first round of the ECAC Southern Division Tournament. In a major upset and heatbreaking defeat for JMU the Red Flash of St. Francis (Pa.) College defeated the Dukes, 58-54. JMU had easily beaten St. Francis the previous week.

Senior All-American candidate Steve Stielper finished his illustrious career at JMU by breaking two school records. He broke the 2000-point mark at home against William & Mary and later broke the school record on the road against the Indians surpassing Sherman Dillard's total of 2065. Stielper finished his career with 2126 points and set the school record in rebounds with 917, overtaking Pat Dosh's total of 821.

Three freshmen played instrumental roles in providing the team with depth. Dan Ruland averaged 5.9 points per game while providing back-up relief in the middle. Dave Dupont led the team in assists with 76 from his guard/forward position, and Charles Fisher came on strong during the second half of the season, including clutch play in the VCU victory.

Inconsistency Causes Problems Railey Sets Rebound Record

Inconsistency marred the youth-filled 1979-80 Duchesses basketball team. After returning from the Clemson Invitational Tournament, the team reeled off three straight victories against VAIWA Division I Conference teams. The most impressive victory came against Norfolk State, where the Duchesses defeated the host team for the first time in six years.

Just as the team had begun to blend together, playing its best ball. Things took a turnaround as several close games fell from the team's reach. In key situations the Duchesses lacked experience to win going down the stretch.

Co-captain Cindy Wadell, the only senior on the team, provided on-court leadership having her best season in 4 years at JMU. The all-junior cast of co-captain Kathy Hanahan, Ann Sonoga, and Kathy Railey also provided major scoring threats, each averaging in double figures for the year. Kathy Railey, the team's most consistent performer, set an individual school record with 28 rebounds against Delaware State. 6'1" freshman center, Diane Meadows, made a strong contribution during the second half of the season, as the team played 9 players to add to the depth.

In the two tournaments, the Duchesses faced action in, they were runners-up — the Salisbury State Tournament and the JMU Invitational Tournament. In the finals of the JMU Tournament the Duchesses finally succumbed in a narrow defeat at the hands of Eastern Kentucky University, in a hard-fought contest at Godwin Hall.

Finishing with an 8-7 dual meet record was quite an accomplishment for a young Duke squad which found itself in the midst of a rebuilding year. Captain Jack Brooks, state record holder of the mile freestyle, was red-shirted due to illness. The team was forced to train harder and improve their individual times, relying on new talent, to bring about a respectable season.

Freshman Steve Vahle performed remarkably throughout the season shattering three school records — the 100 and 200 backstroke and the 200 IM's. Steve teamed to form the 400 medley relay team with Pete Laiti, Joe Kriss, and Kriss Wilson. They broke the school record with a mark of 3:42.039 against the Uni-

Juniors Mike West and Mark Smith battled for diving supremacy. West came away with the School record in the three meter dive and Smith was the record-holder in the one meter dive.

Freshman Chris Laiti, sophomore Loren Couch and junior John White also performed well for the squad, and qualified for the state meet in Norfolk.

They put it all together in the last meet with an impressive victory over Towson State University. Lack of depth in the freestyle events was very detrimental to the team as they lost 2-one point matches to Kutztown State and Appalachian State.

"Breaking 5 school records was probably the highlight of our season, and we were also pleased to finish with another outstanding dual meet record of 9-4," said first-year coach Rose Ann Benson. She added, "I was very pleased with the ladies' performance considering that I didn't get to recruit or work with them much during the off season."

Junior Maria Grosz, the first JMU girl swimmer to be voted athlete of the week in The Breeze, set the school mark in the 100 meter freestyle. Sophomore Patty Soboleski broke 2 records in the 50 and 100 meter backstroke. The 400 free relay and 200 medley relay marks were also shattered at Savage Natatorium. Freshmen Kay Conner and Cecelia Dwyer joined Maria and Patty to qualify for the 200-medley relay and 200-free relay at the AIAW Division II National Championship at PA. Senior captain Connie Hogge continued to add leadership in her first year as a Duchess. Freshman Marie Van Liere represented JMU in the Blind Olympics.

The girls upset 1979 VAAIAW small college champion Richmond, defeated a tough opponent in VCU and beat Towson State Univ. on the last relay in an exciting home meet.

Breaking 160 points was the team's major goal going into the 1979-80 season. The men's gymnastics squad accomplished this goal not only once, but twice. Although they lost both matches against tough opponents, North Carolina State University and University of Pittsburgh, the team accumulated 160.95 and 160.45 points, respectively.

Assistant coach Hayes Kruger was optimistic about the team's performance and emphasized that "the men's enthusiasm developed with their continuing improvement in performance as they increased to high skill levels throughout the season." Under first year Coach Stewart Smith, the team trained on a continuous day-to-day basis, during which individuals received special instruction in certain aspects of their performance.

The team's hard efforts paid off as they finished a strong second behind perennial power William & Mary at the Virginia Men's Collegiate Championships while amassing a team total of 154.65 points. Junior Cliff Miller, the top ring performer at the Essex Open earlier in the year, finished second in the rings with a score of 8.3 at State. Junior team captain Dave Carter, hampered by a wrist injury all season, remained a consistent performer in all events except the vault.

Unity Prompts Improvement

"We're a very close knit group and by working together we help each other to improve," said junior women gymnast Angie Muse. So a youthful 1979-80 women's gymnastic team made great strides in finishing in third place in the VAIW State Championships behind William & Mary and Longwood.

After leading in the first half of the State Tourney, the girls finished poorly, in the vault event and narrowly finished in third place behind Longwood.

In the dual meet upset of the season, the Duchesses defeated State Champion William & Mary by a very slim margin of 120.65 to 140.55. Although the squad lost to a tough Duke University gymnastic team, they turned in their best performance of the year against the Blue Devil women in Durham, N.C.

Freshman Holly Bachand finished second over-all at the State Tournament as she turned in a stunning 8.9 point performance in the vault. Freshman Sue Pelleriti added team depth by stepping in for injured gymnasts and putting in consistent performances. Another freshman Ann Czapiewski, injured off and on during the regular season, fought to get back in form for the state tournament and competed admirably. Co-captains Joann Caravano and Patty Logue also provided team leadership for the Duchesses.

Freshmen Dominate

Wrestling without the services of 2 of JMU's top 1978-79 performers, Brian Langlinais and Scott Utegaard, forced the Dukes wrestling team to depend on inexperienced Freshmen. Injuries took Langlinais and Utegaard out of action, leaving Coach Dick Besnier with the challenge of replacing them. Wrestling 8 to 9 Freshmen per match was the only solution.

Besnier, happy with their potential, said, "I was pleased with the outstanding effort of young kids displayed all season. Although our win/loss record might not indicate it, we wrestled everyone hard and lost some very very close matches."

Of the close matches, JMU lost four contests by one bout. Two freshmen played instrumental roles in leading JMU to first place finishes in the JMU Takedown Tournament and the Washington and Lee Invitational Tournament, which they won for the second straight year; Vic Bowman and Dan Corbin both shattered several freshman records. Corbin (167 lbs) displayed the most impressive performance becoming JMU's first wrestler ever to win the VA State tournament, which was hosted by the Dukes.

Other freshmen standouts included Bob Carmichael, Gary Curwin and Randy Denbigh. Top dual meets finishes were impressive victories over GMU and VMI, and a slim 24-20 loss to ACC rival UVa.

Win Place & Show

Competing against some of the best established equestrian programs in the state and the nation, the JMU equestrian team proved to be strong enough to compete anywhere. Such intrastate powers as Sweetbriar and Virginia Intermont, who have 150-200 girls trying out each year, were tightly contested by the strong JMU team.

The team placed third in the state meet which consisted of three basic events. In the VAIWAW championships, the judges base their scores not only on the equestrian performances, but on the horses themselves. In the Intercollegiate Horsemanship State Association (IHSA) Region IV Championships, the performers are judged solely on their equestrian performances, riding on other teams' horses. In the tournament, the team placed second behind Southern Seminary, and since Southern Seminary could not go to the nationals, JMU was the regional representative. In the IHSA National Championships, the team placed fourth, only seven points behind the winner. They were competing against the best teams in six regions.

The fall season was highlighted by first place finishes at the Randolph Macon Woman's College Intercollegiate Show and the JMU Invitational.

Kim Holt was a major force in providing leadership to the team. Not only did she place high in most shows, she also played a significant role in training young horses at Oak Manor Farm. Karen Cinsavich also placed well in shows throughout the season.

Stunts & Cheers

"Collegiate cheerleading is becoming a real entertainment, and today's cheerleaders must be quite athletic if she or he is to perform their stunts effectively," said third-year cheerleading sponsor Casey Showalter. "With more and more demanding stunts being executed, some type of gymnastic experience is also very beneficial," she continued.

Thus, a talented JMU cheerleading squad began their preparation early attending the National Cheerleaders Association (N.C.A.) camp at the University of Tennessee during the summer. Sixteen cheerleaders, consisting of 8 men and 8 women, participated at the 5-day camp gaining invaluable experience. Each day began early as the squad learned and practiced a variety of new stunts and cheers. During the evening, they would compete against other schools, performing the stunts they had learned that day. The squad competed admirably against schools their own size and larger, grading superior in a number of categories.

Throughout the season the squad performed many of the stunts they learned at camp and ones they formulated themselves, to become one of the top squads in the state.

Aside from the many hours spent by the squad practicing a multitude of exciting pyramids, partners would get together two or three times a week to perfect their timing on stunts. They continued to encourage other in-state squads with their cheerleading program.

Popular Pastime

Participation in intramurals at JMU continued to soar as well over half of the student body participated in one of the 23 sports offered.

Basketball, softball, and football remained the top team sports participated in, which "the racket sports" — tennis and racquetball — were the primary individual sports providing recreation. Upon student support, intramural skiing was added to the already abundant schedule.

There are two divisions of intramural squads, each consisting of a number of teams. The championship division features sororities, fraternities, dorms and organizations. The independent division consist of non-organizational groups. The independent teams are further broken into different categories depending on skill and average years the team has played together.

In each division, all victories are based on a point-per-win basis until the final champion is decided. The final standings for each sport are based on a 6-5-4-3-2-1 point system — with the first place team receiving 6 points down to the 6th place team receiving 1 point. At the end of the intramural season all points are tallied to determine an overall champion.

Intramurals also provide JMU students with a source of part-time employment. According to intramural director George Tolliver the staffs range up to 50 officials per sport. Most paid officials determine how much they want to work.

With the addition of a new athletic facility at JMU, intramurals participation is projected to reach maximum participation in coming years.

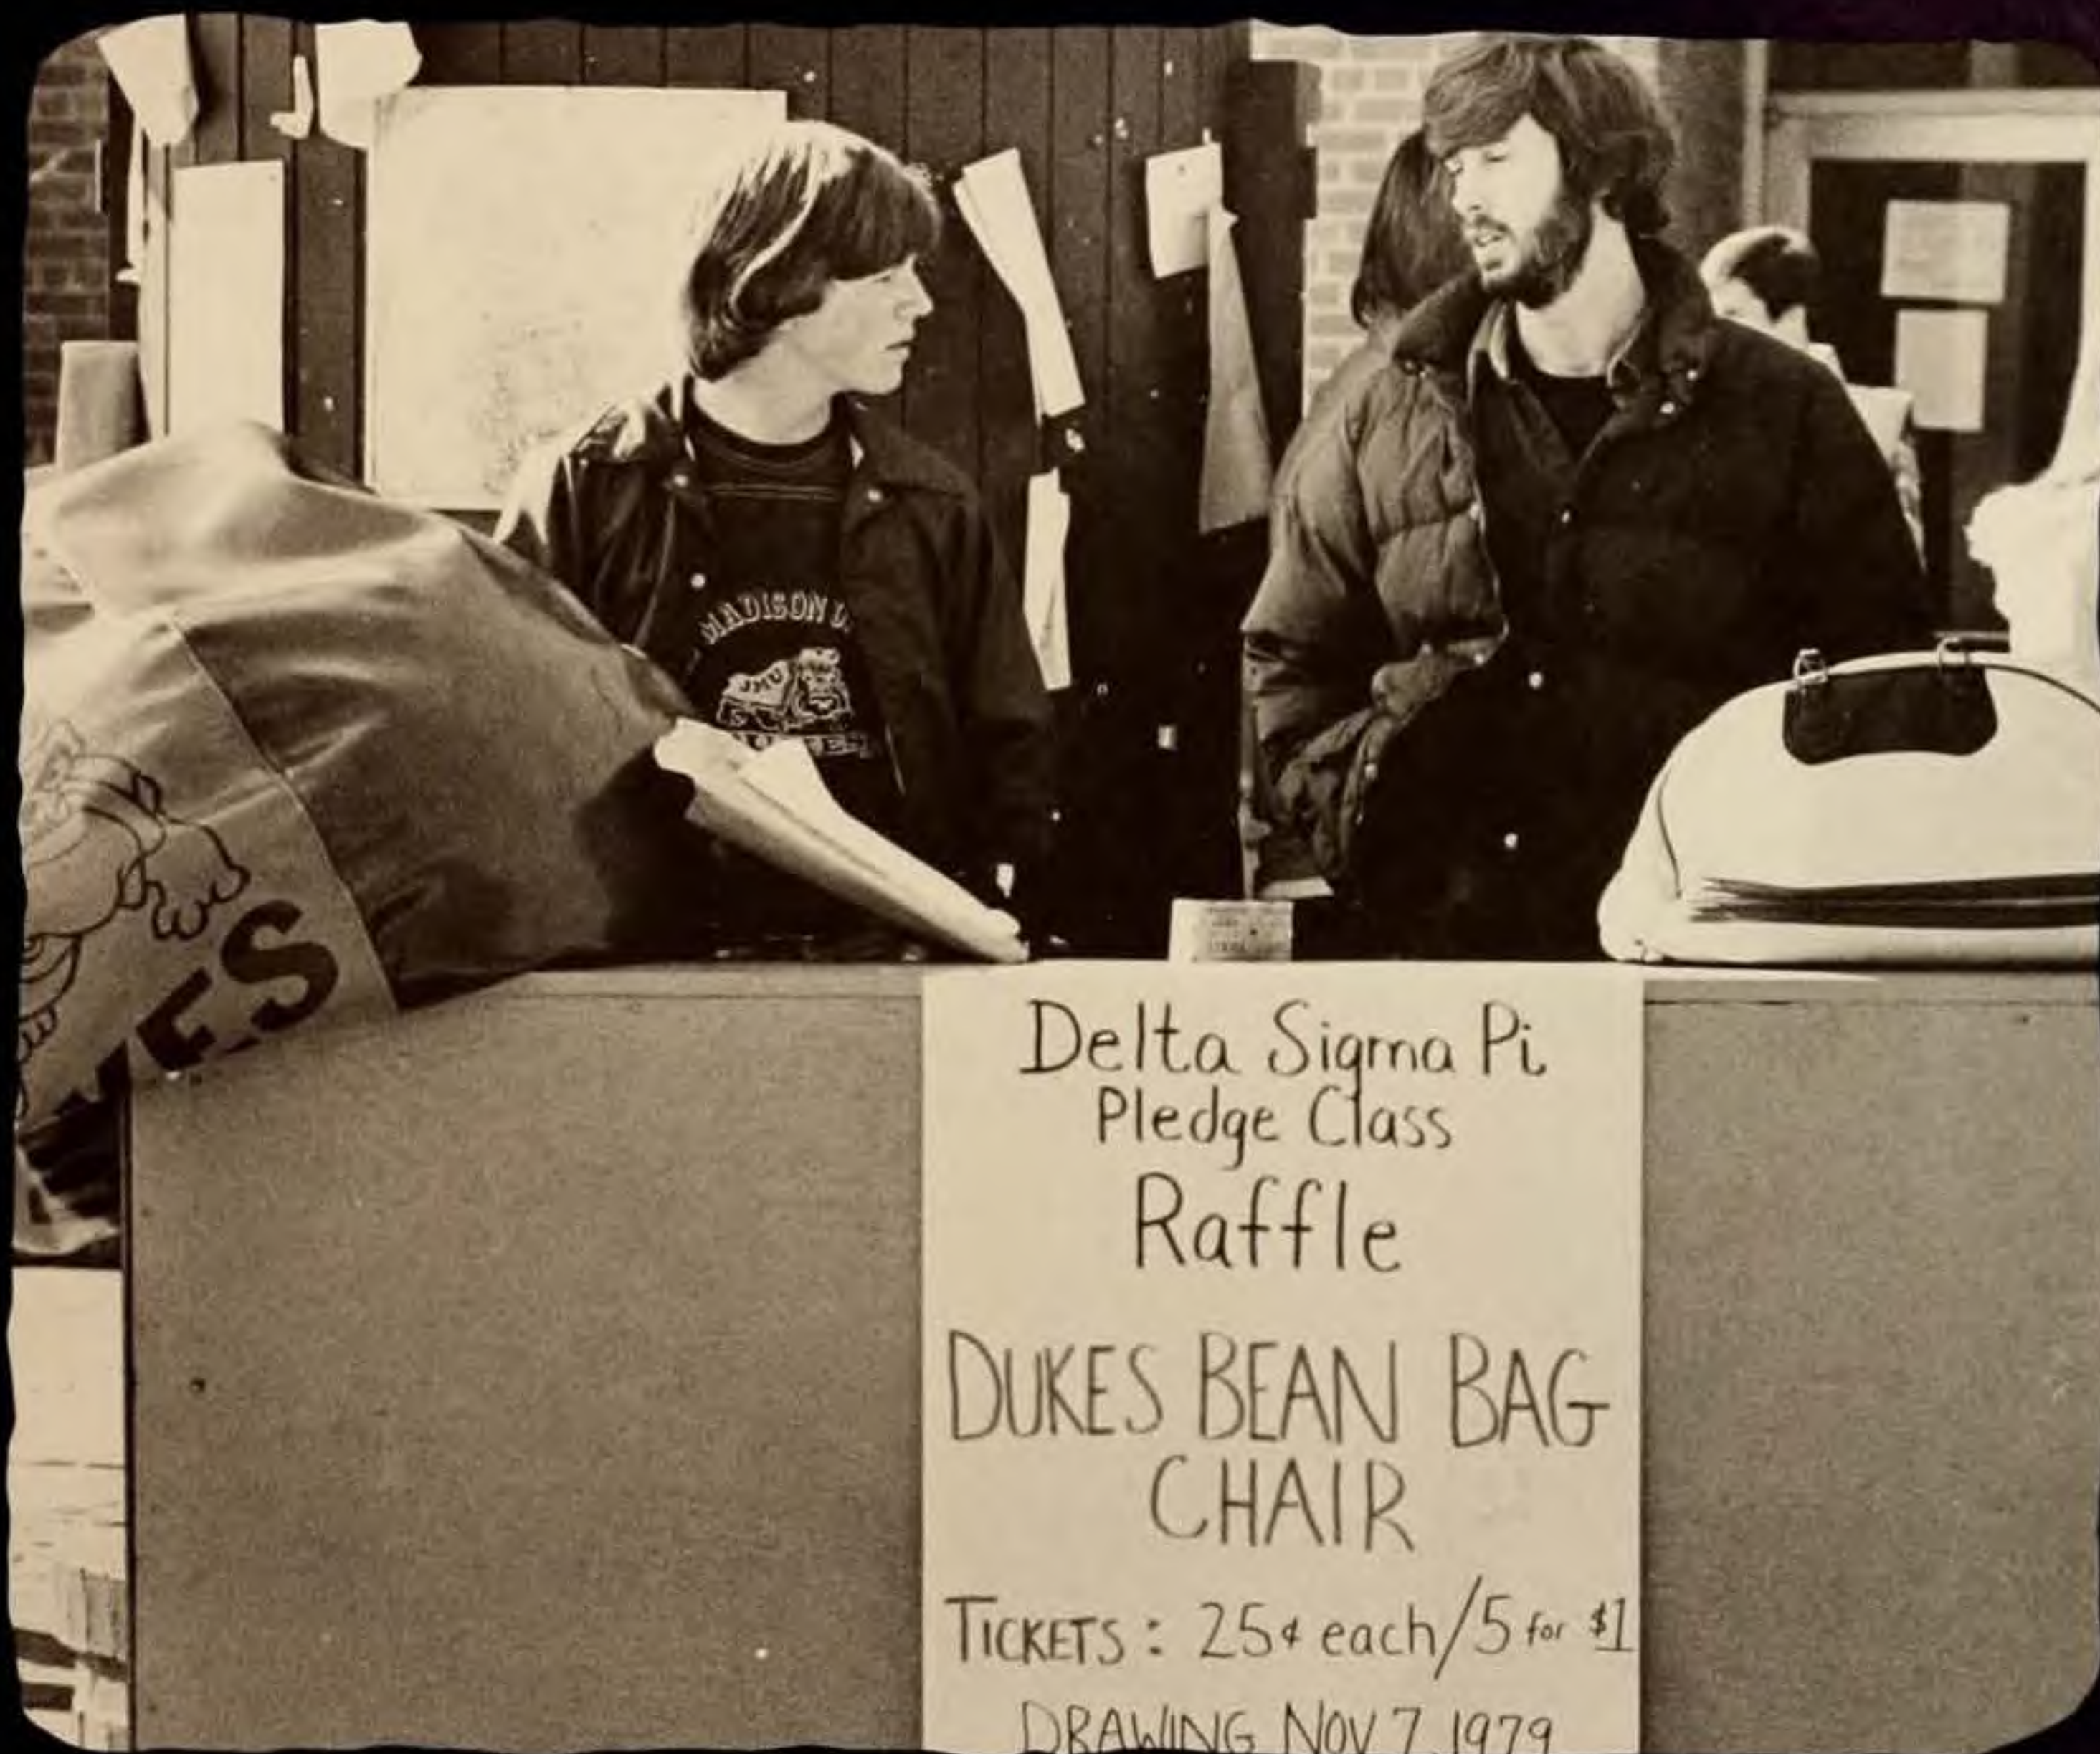

Organizations

MAKING THE GRADE

Sigma Phi Lambda is a campus wide honor society at James Madison University. The requirements of the organization are that all members must maintain a minimum G.P.A. of 3.25 and be a student at JMU for at least one semester.

The purpose of the organization is to promote and maintain scholarship and social experiences among the students and members.

Activities throughout the year include speakers at the monthly meetings. These speakers come from various areas around campus depending on student interest. This year a scholarship of $150.00 will be presented to a freshman, sophomore or junior chosen by a special committee. The final meeting is a formal banquet for all members and the club advisor.

The spring of 1979 was the team's first experience in Lacrosse competition. After entertaining such power-houses as Ohio State, William and Mary, and Roanoke, we captured our first and only win April 7 at Hampden Sydney. We were a young and inexperienced team and the season taught us a lot. We gained valuable experience and on-the-field discipline but above all the season gave the men a "desire" to play Lacrosse.

This year the team took to the road twice for pre season games. The first to the City of Seven Hills where we faced Lynchburg College. They defeated us in the Spring of '79 but after a fast moving, high sticking game that went into overtime, we came out on top 7-6. Ah! The thrill of victory.

Our second and final trip for the fall sent us to Radford College. Playing an exciting, hard hitting, very physical game before a Homecoming crowd we lost in the final seconds 8-6.

One of the features of Rugby Football is that it is a game of physical contact and it is inevitable that hard knocks will be given and taken. Any player taking part in this kind of physical contest knows that there is an injury risk even though the ethics and the laws may be strictly observed.

After a tough contest both teams are again friends and go discuss the game and sing songs over a couple of kegs of beer which are supplied by the home team. The Madison Rugby Club has enjoyed its finest season since its birth in 1975. The teams record so far this year is 5-2. The team's fall wins so far have been over:

35-3 Hagerstown Md.
29-6 Lynchburg City
22-6 William and Mary
19-3 Western Suburbs
19-16 Montgomery

The team's two losses have been only by a difference of seven points.

The Geological Association of Madison is for all persons interested in Geology, whether majors or Non-majors. The GAMC, in association with the Geology faculty or on its own, sponsors seminars throughout the academic year on many topics relating to the field of Geology. Fund raising projects include the selling of USGS maps, and rock and map sales held throughout the year. The GAMC also sponsors field and caving trips for all interested persons. Also, in the near future, the club will be sponsoring exchange programs with Geology Departments of other major colleges in order to give the members a greater degree of variety in the different disciplines of the geology field. All of the above activities are directed toward broadening the academic and social aspects of the geology field for the purpose of producing a higher degree of professionalism in the geology majors at Madison.

SERVING DAILY

Circle K is an active service organization, part of Circle K international. The current international theme is "Caring-Life's Magic" and, because this is the year of the child, emphasis is placed on projects with children. Projects have included outings with underprivileged children, tutoring local students, a backgammon-a-thon to raise money for the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind, a blood pressure clinic, a blood and organ donor drive, a game-a-thon for Multiple Sclerosis, and much more. Circle K is the total organization — for people who believe the magic of caring.

The James Madison University Service Co-Op is made up of Madison Student Clubs and organizations that are involved in some way with volunteer service. In its second full year of operation, the Co-Op currently has 29 affiliate clubs, and is growing. The Co-Op provides an opportunity for clubs to pass on information regarding their projects, in order to avoid conflicts, and to recruit and offer assistance on service activities. The Co-Op also serves as a link with Harrisonburg area service groups, helping to establish cooperation between campus and community volunteer efforts. In addition, the Co-Op provides assistance for clubs in the areas of project selection and planning, public relations, and fundraising.

LEARNING TO MAKE LEARNERS

Student Education Association is a pre-professional organization designed for education majors, minors, and all others interested in teacher certification.

Members at the local level also automatically join both the state and national organization which greatly enhances communication and service. The major goal of the organization is to help prepare teachers for their future classroom experience. Workshops, state meetings and conventions facilitate the realization of their goal.

Student Education

The Council for Children with Behavior Disorders is a service club focusing on helping emotionally disturbed children. The club is open to anyone interested in working with others although it provides many opportunities for Special Education majors to gain practical experience. CCBD's activities include groups at Western State and DeJarnette's in Staunton, Covington Boys Home, and Rivendale Home for Boys as well as local children. The slogan "Where Children Come First" sums up the activities and purpose of CCBD very well.

The James Madison University affiliate chapter of the National Association for the Education of Young Children (JMUAEYC) consists of sixty persons, all exhibiting interest in children. The purposes of the organization are: to serve and act on behalf of the needs and rights of all young children, to promote the professional growth of JMU students, and, to inform the surrounding community about children's needs and rights.

To accomplish this the group participates in a variety of activities. This year the group has scheduled and sponsored a variety of speakers, collected money for UNICEF at Halloween, participated in fund raising and social events, and organized and attended workshops on campus and throughout the state. During the "Week of the Young Child," April 6 to 12, the group participated in a number of different activities in hopes of stimulating the area's adults to make attempts to improve the quality of opportunities available to its children.

Alpha Beta Alpha, the national undergraduate Library Science Fraternity, gives an opportunity for students interested in the field of Library Science to obtain additional knowledge about the profession and to aid them in setting and expanding their career goals. In this pursuit, the JMU chapter, Alpha Alpha, provides various programs and activities. Speakers provide club members with information to aid them in their professional growth as future media specialists. Other activities in which members have participated include workshops in reading motivation, puppets and puppetry, and equipment repair. The organization also sponsored a used booksale, an annual Christmas party, and banquet.

NOTED ENSEMBLES

Sigma Alpha Iota is an international academic fraternity for women in the field of music. One of the main goals is to raise the standards of productive musical work among the women students of colleges, conservatories and universities. Although most of the time the members are seen ushering at recitals or selling donuts in the lobby of Duke, they are also involved in many other fraternity projects. Part of the money raised goes to People to People

Music Fund which provides music and instruments to countries overseas who normally would not be able to afford them. Another one of our projects is Bold Notes. The Library of Congress sends music which is prepared and later enlarged so the visually impaired can read it. Finally, on a community level, the fraternity provides Senior Citizens from Sunnyside home with transportation to some of the departmental recitals.

Phi Mu Alpha

Established in 1898, Phi Mu Alpha has become the major Men's Professional fraternity of Music in America. To encourage and actively promote the highest standards of creativity, performance education and research of music in America is only one of many related purposes that Sinfonians adhere to. The Gamma Alpha chapter sponsor many activities for the university including ushering groups for university concerts, guest speakers, and the annual Jazz Festival. All members are involved in University Ensembles and go on tour regularly to promote James Madison University. This Fraternity is open to anyone interested in music.

The Chorale begins every year with a picnic to welcome it's new and returning members.

Each November we go on a two-day tour to Northern Virginia where we conduct a workshop and give a combined concert with students from an area high school. This year we will be working with Stonewall Jackson High School.

Chorale and Concert Choir bring in the Christmas season by spending the first Saturday in December decorating Wilson Auditorium and making it a beautiful setting for the next day's Christmas Vespers concert.

In the spring, Chorale gives it's home concert the first Sunday after spring break in Wilson Auditorium at 3 P.M. Soon afterwards we leave on our annual weeklong tour. This year we are heading to Tidewater, Richmond, Charlottesville and Waynesboro. Our concerts are well received and often aid us in recruiting new musicians to JMU.

The Frances Sale Home Economics Club is a student member section of VHEA/AHEA and provides all Home Economics majors and minors with the opportunity to develop professionally. Career and professional interest is encouraged through monthly speakers at club meetings and through state conventions and workshops. This year's topics covered nutrition education, career skills, and professional development. Highlights of the year included hosting the state workshop in the fall on the topic of "Consumer Issues: Making Ends Meet" and the other was the Spring Banquet. Fund-raising projects included a popcorn ball sale and the annual garage sale. Club committees and service projects covered the areas of the fall workshop, consumer awareness and legislation, and a reading project for the elderly.

The JMU chapter of College Republicans has been one of the most active clubs in the state of Virginia. It has been named "Best Small Club" for the last two years due to its enthusiastic involvement with local, state and national campaigns. The active and associate membership of the club has grown to an all-time high of over 75 members this year, paralleling the dramatic growth of the university. The JMU College Republicans are dedicated to the active political education of the academic community, and strive for more dynamic governmental action by participating in the yearly campaigns held in this state.

The Hotel-Restaurant Management Club, consisting of approximately 40 members, was established to provide an opportunity for students majoring in the HRM program to broaden their interests in the hospitality industry.

This year the club became associated with the International Food Service Executives Association with a student branch being established on campus. This affiliation will help the club strengthen contacts made at annual state and national trade shows.

The club's major activities have included "A Night Out at Gibbons," a world record attempt, and various community service projects.

The club also allows members to become familiar with various "trick of the trade" such as cake decorating, bartending, and ice carving through special courses and seminars.

The Student Alumni Association is active not only in alumni affairs but also in campus affairs. The two major undertakings of the group are Homecoming activities in the fall and the Senior Programs in the spring. For Homecoming, the group organized the Ms. Madison contest, the Homecoming parade, the football game's half-time activities, the annual Homecoming dance, and mum sales. The spring Senior Programs are divided into three areas — the Senior Booklet, Senior Seminars, and the Senior Pledge Program.

The group serves the university in a number of capacities. They organize and direct tours for interested high school students for the Admissions office, and organize the annual Alumni Telethon.

The group is also directly involved with alumni activities through their support in hosting the numerous alumni programs held on campus and throughout the state.

Student Government

Representing the entire undergraduate student population, the Student Government Association acts as the voice of the students and actively participates in the governance of the university. Much like the federal government, the SGA is comprised of three branches; the executive, the legislative, and the judicial. The executive branch consists of five executive council officers who are popularly elected every April and serve for one year. The legislative branch, better known as the Student Senate, is made up of senators from each residence hall and thirteen senators elected by the commuter students. The Judicial branch is composed of the Student Advocate Corp and the Student Judicial Coordinator. The Commuter Student Committee, the Inter-Hall Council, and each class Committee are also part of the SGA. All Students are encouraged to become involved in the Student Government Association and play an active role in policy making for the university.

Honor Council

The Commuter Student Committee, representing one third of the full-time students at JMU, is the most direct connection for commuter student involvement in student governmental activities. Having thirteen Senators in the SGA Senate, our voice is heard on issues directly affecting commuters as well as those affecting the entire student population.

The CSC working towards providing adequate parking for commuters prompted the formation of the first permanent all-commuter parking lot, J-Lot, as well as providing commuters an emergency parking space at the Health Center. In addition to establishing parking on campus, the CSC assisted WMRA with their Car Pool Program.

Recognizing the priority concern of housing for commuters, the CSC initiated a Landlord-Tenant survey to be on file in the office and staffed the office during the summer to assist orientation of transfer students.

The Commuter Student Committee will continue to serve as the link between the commuter body and the Student Government Association as well as striving to solve the problems unique to commuter life.

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. was founded at Howard University in 1913 with 22 members. This international, public service organization has grown into its present membership of over 100,000 members. The principles upon which Delta was founded: scholarship, character and service has endured through time. The thrust of Delta's program center around the Five Point Program: Educational, Economic Development, Community and International Involvement, Housing and Urban Development and Mental Health. In 1971, the Iota Alpha Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta was chartered at James Madison University. This chapter has dedicated themselves to the implementation of numerous service projects for community, campus and area groups. This year, Iota Alpha has focused many of their service projects in support of "The International Year of the Child."

Delta Sigma Theta

Founded at Howard University, in Washington, D.C., on January 15, 1908, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. initiated the movement of Greek-letter sororities among black women in America. AKA was founded to encourage high moral and ethical character, academic excellence, and to serve humanity. Although it began with sixteen young women, the membership of more than 75,000 college women affiliated with undergraduate and alumna chapters are located nationally and outside continental USA.

The Lambda Chi chapter was chartered at Madison on February 12, 1978. Since that time the chapter's members have participated in a blood donor's drive, Student Activities Night, and Homecoming activities. Lambda Chi has also worked booths at Spring Fever, held teas for prospective freshman students, held Halloween parties for children, and also adopted needy families in the Harrisonburg area.

Pictured with the ladies of Alpha Kappa Alpha, are the men of the Xi Delta chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. The JMU chapter of the first nationally known Black Greek-letter organization was founded by nine students on March 2, 1979 and recognized by the University on November 1, 1979. The national organization of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. was started at Cornell University on December 4, 1906. It has blossomed into over 280 college and 265 alumni chapters in 44 states, the West Indies, Europe, Africa and the Virgin Islands.

Since the establishment of the chapter in March, these young men have been involved in such service projects as the "Special Olympics," Saturday Adoption, tutoring programs, and a Weekend Big Brother Program with Harrisonburg area youth.

Mail, mail, mail and more mail — or maybe not. For those who receive mail in some consistency, the P.O. box is a sacred location. However, for those who continually receive "air mail" it can be a quite disheartening spot. Disheartening or not, the P.O. box opens doorways to escape from the hustle of any routine. This doorway leads to messages from family, friends, and Grandma, who always sends money. Some receive exciting periodicals and not so exciting test results. Even less exciting are those terrible bills one seems to get while patiently watching cobwebs adorn the box. Next time you anxiously peer into the smugged, enumerated window and expect some message from some far off land, hope it is not "air mail."

PICK-UP BASKETBALL

On almost any free weeknight, Godwin gym and other basketball courts on campus are full of basketball devotees. To a passer-by, this seemingly barbaric event looks quite unorganized. On the contrary, pick-up basketball is a highly organized sport. Compared to intercollegiate sports there are no scholarships, unbearable coaching or practicing to contend with. It is the essence of what athletics is all about; the willingness to compete, enjoy and hopefully derive great satisfaction from participation.

Biking has become very popular on the campus of JMU, mainly because of the price of gasoline. The ones who seem to be benefitting from the change of the four-wheeled gas hog to the pedal powered two-wheeler are commuters. They no longer have to make the long haul from the parking lots. Instead, they can pedal straight to class. Biking has even more appeal as fun and healthy exercise. For these reasons, bikers are becoming more numerous. Unfortunately, there is one drawback, while they can avoid the steep price of gasoline, they cannot avoid the steep hills of Harrisonburg.

Picture this familiar scene: A typical student plans a terrific weekend at home, but still needs a ride. On Wednesday, still stranded without transportation, the student is wild eyed and frantic. The rideboard, located in the Student Union, manages to provide an end to such problems. Not only do riders find rides to their weekend dream spots, but drivers can forget those skyrocketing gas prices. Usually rides can be found within the Old Dominion and its neighboring states, but there's not much luck for riders who wish to motor to such places as San Francisco or Dallas. Regardless, the ride board is as important a step as the car that arrives at that distant destination.

Where can you indulge in delicious, mouth-watering pizza without going too far off campus? You guessed it, Luigi's. Many students who get the D-Hall blues or their fill of specials at Dukes, do not hesitate to stroll up campus and get a pizza with pepperonies, mushrooms and onions to just plain munch-out. There are those students who prefer the telephone to the walk, especially inhabitants of the Village. Just the simple dial of seven digits make a pizza a reality right in the dorm. Whether you prefer a meal or a munch, Luigi's is a mere hop, skip and a pizza away.

At the beginning of every school year, students are plagued with the dilemma of decorating their dorm rooms. There are always posters in the bookstore and plant sales on the WUU patio, but sometimes this isn't enough. In September Ron Art arrived on campus to sell his craft. It is always captivating to watch an artist create a scene from a blank canvas, but Ron Art's appeal was probably due to his fantastic dexterity. A few quick strokes of the paint brush across the canvas for a background, a few flicks of a sharp edge to create shapes, and the picture is held up for approval. An audience continually surrounded him as he produced up to 12 paintings an hour. Students bought his paintings to liven up their dull cinderblock walls. If anyone missed Ron Art this semester, he's sure to be back for a fast buck next year.

Running has become increasingly popular all over the country. People are running for numerous reasons: candidates for president, robbers of banks, and students late for classes. However, there are others who run for health reasons of both mind and body. Running allows one to tone up many muscles and simply make the body feel good. Mentally, running is a good escape from burdensome problems. The night runner enjoys the fresh air and the somber atmosphere of the evening. Bright sunshine is in store for the day runner. In-climate weather rarely stops the devoted runner. The lone runner who takes his daily jaunt really isn't all that lonely, because he is in harmony with his mind and body.

HoJo's

What dorm has wall-to-wall carpeting, a color television, air-conditioning, a private bath and access to a pool? Howard Johnson's! Of course it is not a dorm, but a few students have taken up "permanent" residence there. Several residents placed there, due to lack of dorm space, refused to move when spaces became available. Who could blame them? With those comforts and conveniences, at JMU prices, it would be foolish to give it all up. Ironically, HoJo's was originally used as a punishment for not getting room deposits in before the deadline. Perhaps the next dorm erected on the JMU campus should be dedicated and named after our beloved inn keeper — Howard Johnson Hall.

Panty Raids

I thought I was dreaming about an ocean enveloping me, until I realized I wasn't the only one having the dream. The increasing roar catapulted me out of my bed and to the window. To my delight, a tidal wave of men were pouring across the practice field and heading straight for Eagle Hall. My excitement ended when I realized all they wanted were my panties. Hundreds of guys streamed around the dorm shouting for a show. A few well received moons increased the thundering until Security chased the overflowing mob in another direction.

Shoot Yourself

When the Bluestone invited the students of James Madison University to "Shoot Yourself," it was not a plea for mass suicide. Instead, it was an attempt to make use of the creative imagination that flows through the minds of college students and to give them a hand in the creation of memories that goes into the yearbook. The participants didn't use guns to shoot themselves; all that was needed was a camera and a great deal of creativity. The Bluestone staff provided only the photographic equipment. The rest was up to the students, and each group designed their own pose and actually snapped the picture.

The response to the Bluestone's invitation was enthusiastic as students sought relief from the hum-drum routines of classes and parties. Or, perhaps the response was a fulfillment of every person's secret desire to be a "ham" with a camera as the audience.

Miss JMU Pageant

Fifteen female students competed in the first pageant of its type to be held at JMU on January 13th — the Miss JMU pageant, officially sanctioned by engineers of the Miss America operation.

The contestants, represented a variety of campus organizations, competed in talent, bathing suit, and evening gown competitions. Personal interviews were conducted prior to the pageant.

The pageant presented a well organized, professional atmosphere. The full house Wilson Hall audience responded receptively to the poised girls and additional entertainment.

Susan Durrin, a senior communication arts major, won the competition. She received a $1,500 scholarship, a crown from Wilson Jewelers, fashion from Joseph Ney's, flowers from Blakemore's, and a chance at the Miss Virginia pageant which could lead to the Miss America title.

Despite the success of the pageant, it did not please everyone. Fifty-seven faculty members signed a petition the preceeding Friday, objecting to the university's support and hosting of the pageant. Most of them did not object to the idea of the beauty pageant itself.

One faculty member felt the pageant did nothing to "advance recognition that young men and women have an equal claim in a campus community to be judged in terms of their intellectual skills."

Miss Durrin admitted that she could see both sides of the controversy surrounding the Miss JMU pageant, but she believes that this was a test of her "overall" abilities and "not a test of the academic knowledge she has attained here."

It's Spaghetti Night at D-Hall!

Gibbons Hall, affectionately called d-hall, undoubtedly serves as a major social gathering for dining hall contract students. There they gather to complain about the food and classes, to scope out the guys or girls, and to joke around with friends.

Excessive complaints about the food brought about a survey in the fall to determine what main dishes the students liked. The management took the tabulated results into consideration in planning the menus for spring semester.

Several outrageous food fights caused terrible messes for the employees to clean up, and eventually monitors stationed around the dining room added a tension filled air to help students enjoy dinner. Over the Christmas break, the strategic long tables along the windows were separated and rearranged.

An article in a November d-hall Digest dubbed spaghetti night a definite crowd pleaser. On these nights, about 3900 people are fed, as compared to 3500 on an average night.

A list of unbelievable quantities of ingredients included 400 lbs. of spaghetti noodles, 500 lbs. of ground beef, 20 cases of spaghetti sauce with mushrooms, 30 lbs. of onions, and 3 lbs. of garlic powder, to name a few.

To prepare this meal, the ground beef is divided among three 50 gal. saucepans and browned with the spices. The spaghetti and tomato sauce is added and mixed well. Everything is simmered for at least two hours.

As mealtime draws near, three 80 gal. pans are filled with water and brought to a boil. Eight lbs. of noodles are cooked in each one. The cauldrons are drained and filled again for another round.

Thirty lbs of grated cheese, 150 loaves of homemade garlic bread, a salad bar, and 4000 desserts are put out and dinner is complete.

The evidence confirmed the claim — spaghetti night does pack them in.

It May not be Aspen,
but who says skiing
at Massanutten can't be fun?

When conditions are right, JMU ski fanatics drop everything and head for the slopes.

A mere twenty minute drive from campus, Massanutten Village Ski Resort boasts the steepest verticle drop and longest runs in Virginia. These factors attract student skiers of every skill level.

A majority of students try skiing at least once during their four years at JMU. Fitted with rental equipment, the beginner struggles to reach the chair lift. Nervously excited he finally makes it to the top of the slope and begins to snowplow down. Several falls later he reaches the bottom.

However, JMU does have its share of advanced skiers. Some of these students work as ski instructors at Massanutten, patiently teaching their less skilled peers.

Skiing at any level can be taken as a two credit hour P.E. requirement for an additional fee. The enrollment in this popular course doubled this year, and still turned students away during registration.

The first JMU intramural NASTAR race took place in late February. The competition consisted of team and individual winners.

As long as good conditions and finances last, JMU skiers thrive on the slopes.

Florida Or Bust

Make the hotel reservation early and rent the camping equipment now! It's almost spring break and time for the yearly migration of college students to Ft. Lauderdale and Key West to begin.

Twenty two hours of driving to sleep in the sun all day and bar hop all night. Ft. Lauderdale is filled to the brim with everybody you know. So is your hotel room — it's less expensive that way. Lauderdale can't really be called a relaxing place for a break; it's a better termed an escape full of energy.

Eight hours beyond this hot spot, some students head to Key West. These campers spend a lot less money to "get back to nature" cooking on an open campfire, scuba diving, swimming, and watching breathtaking sunsets. The Keys are a place to relax, spread out, meet new people and enjoy the scenic environment in any way they choose.

When the week is up, cars are packed for the long, tiresome drive back to JMU. The sunburned bodies soon fade to winter paleness and the reality of the spring semester resumes.

can not be lost by modernization.”*

Experiencing the beauty of the Shenandoah Valley is part of being a James Madison University student. We come from many diverse backgrounds and areas, some of which are a dramatically different environment from the Valley, but each of us finds this area has something special to offer.

Harrisonburg is not a spectacular, bustling city; but recent years have seen tremendous expansion and progress, from remodeling old structures to constructing new ones. Building the Valley Mall expanded local and area resident's shopping opportunities, and the scores of new fast food restaurants attract hundreds of customers daily. However, the charm of Main Street still sparkles despite this growth.

Harrisonburg's Main Street is the portrayal of the stereotype small city. For five city blocks, specialty shops line the one way street. Half-way up Main Street, Route 33 intersects and follows around Court Square.

The old bluestone courthouse that sits on the square, sets an atmosphere of a sturdy past that can not be lost by modernization. A look around the hub of Harrisonburg reveals this well-preserved past. The beautiful 19th century homes and native stone churches recall days and events that refuse to be forgotten.

“Harrisonburg is surrounded by the breathtaking beauty of the Blue Ridge Mountains.”

Students grow to appreciate and love the comfortable small town surroundings. They develop a sense of pride and adoption of the area as their home. The picturesque JMU campus appropriately reflects the community's personality.

Harrisonburg is surrounded by the breath-taking beauty of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The serenity and slower rural pace are two aspects of the Valley that are very appealing. The Valley provides a relief from the tensions of academics and a fast paced world that often make it difficult to cope. A drive, a walk, or even a quick scan of the Blue Ridge can rejuvenate a tired soul.

"Anyone who can remain calm in the midst of all this confusion, obviously doesn't understand the situation."

I don't remember where we found this profound statement, but we all strongly confirm its validity. Beautifully crafted with black magic marker on poster board, it added a nice touch to our cyclone hit office.

Actually, a more accurate attribution to the G-9 disaster area is five deadlines. Those constant pushes to get every page completed on time. It begins with information gathering, which results in writing and editing copy. The photographers are expected to be five places at once for photo assignments. They finally emerge from their dark den, their blood shot eyes shocked by the sunlight, with their arms full of pictures. The editors make nervewracking attempts to give their section style and continuity: choose the right picture, crop it, draw the page layout, labor over headlines, lose their eyesight bending over artwork that insists on cracking and lying crooked. Then there is page after page of typing, and the attempt to draw neat final layouts.

Everything is then proofread (at the last minute of course). Always looming over you is the dreadful knowledge that somewhere in those 408 pages, a word or worse yet, a name will slip by misspelled.

Finally, the deadline is packaged and mailed. Is it over? No such luck. The publishing company will send blueprints to be painstakingly proofread, corrected and returned within 48 hours.

I know I'm making this whole process sound absolutely dreadful. Sometimes it is; especially when everyone gets tired, cranky, and behind in classwork. Despite the stress and chaos, friendships between some very different people are formed, complete with fun and pure hysterics.

This may sound hokey, but in the end we do pull through, and in some unexplainable way it all seems worthwhile.

Do you remember that first day at Madison College when you weren't quite sure if you were at the right place? That seems like a very long time past.

Once again, Julie and I are on the home stretch, but this is finally the last race. The 1980 Bluestone is complete.

Thank you staff. We've had the trials and tribulations, but there have been some good times mixed in this jumbled mess. Those of you who worked with everything you had within you — thank you from the very deepest within me.

To my special friends — much love.
Now it's time to move on.
